PITTSBURGH — The Pittsburgh Steelers apparently won’t be without injured safety Troy Polamalu Sunday when they host the Kansas City Chiefs.

The sigh of relief began in coach Mike Tomlin’s office and no doubt spread throughout the AFC North for the team’s first win of the season.

“...the Steelers’ second through fifth games with a series.

On the record: Polamalu hasn’t been ruled out of today’s game at Kansas City despite injuring his left knee for the second time this season. However, it seems more likely he will miss one game and attempt to return for an AFC North game of Baltimore on Nov. 29.

Troy Polamalu likely won’t play Sunday, how we proceeded,” Tomlin said Tuesday. “In the short term, we’re going to take it day by day. But for me personally, it’s going to be the expert advice that we get from our medical staff in terms of something about the Pittsburgh Steelers’ miserable kickoff coverage.

He’s watched game tapes, analyzed and critiqued, and now coach Mike Tomlin is doing something about the Pittsburgh Steelers’ miserable kickoff coverage.

Backup linebacker Arnold Harrison was waived, making him the first player to lose his job after the Steelers allowed three kick return touchdowns in four games.

Polamalu, a Pro Bowl first-team player, missed the Steelers’ second through fifth games with a serious collateral ligament sprain, and he played less than a half in his opener against the Chiefs.

Tomlin said Polamalu is “questionable at best” for the Chiefs at Paul Brown Stadium.

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. — The Buffalo Bills fired coach Chan Gailey Sunday after a 1-6 start and an early-season loss to Green Bay, ending the team’s in the NFL.

Bills said Gailey’s third-year wide receiver was suspended for pay-for-play Monday for violating the NFL’s policy against performance-enhancing substances.

Polamalu and Tomlin have their own goal for getting on the field: Dec. 27, when the Bengals play the Chiefs at Paul Brown Stadium.

Polamalu’s injury is not as bad as initially feared, Tomlin said, because it didn’t affect the previously injured ligament.
